

IANSA Statement on Publication Ethics and Publication Malpractice

Interdisciplinaria Archaeologica – Natural Sciences in Archaeology (IANSA) requires all authors, editors and reviewers to adhere to the ethical guidelines and standards developed and published by the Committee on Publication Ethics (COPE). All documents are available free of charge on the COPE website [<http://publicationethics.org/>].

Please contact Publishing Editor if you are dealing with a (potential) case of publishing misconduct.

Editors

The IANSA Editor is responsible for deciding which of the articles submitted to the journal should be published. The IANSA Editor will accept and evaluate manuscripts for their intellectual content regardless of race, gender, nationality, ethnic origin, political philosophy, religious belief, or sexual orientation of the authors.

IANSA editors must not disclose any information about a submitted manuscript to anyone other than stakeholders. Unpublished manuscripts or materials must not be used in an editor's own research.

All submitted manuscripts will be considered for publication free of charge.

If there is any conflict of interest between the IANSA Editor and any of the authors of a paper submitted for review, this matter should be declared by the Editor and referred to the Editorial Board for their decision on the outcome of the submission process.

Authors

Authors must attest that paper is their own, original and unpublished work.

Authors should guarantee that the manuscript has not been copied, plagiarised or self-plagiarised (in whole or in part); a paper should contain sufficient detail and references to permit others to replicate the work; any information sources (text, data, images ...) used in the contribution must be appropriately cited or referenced.

Authorship should be limited to those who have made a significant contribution to the manuscript content. All those who made a significant contribution should be listed as co-authors according to the intellectual property rights of the researchers connected to the research in question. Others, such as project personnel or affiliated individuals should be noted in the Acknowledgements.

The affiliation and corresponding address for all authors/co-authors must be clearly stated. Any changes of authorship during the submission, review, and publication process must be announced in writing to the IANSA Editor.

Authors must declare any conflict of interest, receipt of funding and attribution of funding agencies, and compliance with any Human Rights / Informed Consent requirements (e.g. if working with human anthropological data).

When authors discover a significant error or inaccuracy in their own published work, the Authors are obliged to promptly notify the Publisher and cooperate with the IANSA Editor to retract or correct the paper.

Reviewers

If there is any conflict of interest between the potential reviewer and any of the authors of a paper submitted for review, or if a potential reviewer recognizes any author as a personal collaborator, this matter should be declared to the IANSA Editor, who will decide on whether this reviewer should continue with the review task.

Any manuscripts received for review must be treated as confidential documents.

Privileged information/ideas obtained by reviewers through the peer review process must be kept confidential and not used for personal advantage.

Personal criticism of the author is inappropriate; the review should be conducted objectively.

All suggestions and comments should be followed with supporting arguments.

Publisher

The publisher should act in ethical accordance with the IANSA policy and COPE standards, and ensure that no financial gains are to be made from the act of publication other than those agreed with the IANSA Editorial Board.

Approved by the IANSA Editorial Board in Hradec Králové, Czech Republic, 19 January 2018.

Roderick B. Salisbury, Chair of the IANSA Advisory Board

Jaromír Beneš, Chair of the IANSA Editorial Board